

Field Agent Guide

For Village Agents and CBTs: running a visit, scoring a group, coaching its officials, and looking after what you collect.

Everything on your phone works without a network. The visit is written where it happens and sent when you are back in signal.

PART 1

Your job on this phone

You carry a caseload of savings groups, you visit them, and you record what you find. The app does not change what a good agent does — it changes what happens to the evidence afterwards.

What an agent can and cannot do

This boundary is deliberate, and it protects you as much as it protects the group. You are a witness to a group's record, never a party to its money.

	Can you?
See your caseload	Yes — the groups assigned to you, and no others.
See a group's standing	Yes — its credit rating, members, meetings and history.
Record a visit	Yes — location, scorecard, coaching, the group's enterprise and your notes.
Score a group	Yes. The assessment is your professional judgement, and it is recorded as yours.
Photograph evidence	Yes, but only from the question it answers. There is no loose camera button.
Move a group's money	No. Not a share, not a loan, not a fine. You cannot open a meeting or touch the ledger.
Change a group's figures	No. What the group recorded is theirs. You record what you saw, separately.
See another agent's groups	No. A group outside your caseload does not exist as far as your phone is concerned.

Two ratings, and they are not the same thing

The credit rating (A–D, out of 100) is worked out by the system from the group's own ledger — meetings sealed, loans repaid, savings kept up. Nobody types it in. The assessment band (Weak to Excellent) comes from the scorecard you fill in with the officials. They can disagree, and when they do that is information rather than an error: a group can keep a tidy ledger and still be badly governed.

Your caseload. Each group carries its credit band, so the ones needing attention are visible before you open anything.

A group's standing, factor by factor — and a plain list of what would raise it.

Your account: who is signed in, your language, and which server this phone talks to.

Before you set out

- Open each group you plan to visit while you still have signal. The app caches what it needs; a group you have never opened has nothing to show you in the field.
- Check the assessment form has downloaded. It is fetched once and then works offline. If Score the group says the form is not available, connect before you travel.
- Read what was left open last time. The visit screen shows it, but knowing before you arrive is the difference between checking a promise and discovering one.
- Charge the phone. A visit that cannot be finished is a visit that has to be written twice.

PART 2

The visit

One visit is one record: where you were, what you scored, what you coached, what the group thought of it, and what everyone agreed to do next. It is written on the phone as it happens and sent when you are back in signal.

The visit, end to end

Open	Where	Last time	Score	Coach	Business	Finish
1	2	3	4	5	6	7
1. Open	Choose the visit type. Five types exist because they mean different things to the office; what you capture is the same.
2. Where you are	Your coordinates and their accuracy are read once, here. Whether that matches the group's registered point is worked out by the office, not by your phone.
3. Last time	Anything the group still owes from the previous visit, listed before you start so it cannot be quietly skipped.
4. Score	The scorecard, worked through with the officials. See Part 3.
5. Coach	What you covered, in your own words — then hand the phone over.
6. Business	The group's own enterprise, if it runs one.
7. Finish	Saves the whole document on the phone. It uploads itself when you have signal.

The first screenshot shows the 'Demo Test VSLA' screen at 9:38. It includes a 'VISIT TYPE' section with options: First visit, Follow-up (selected), Quarterly review, Intelli-Cash support, and Unannounced check. Below is 'WHERE YOU ARE' with coordinates 37.42200, -122.08400 and an 'Update location' button. The 'BEFORE YOU START' section shows 'Nothing outstanding'. The 'ASSESSMENT' section has 'Score the group' (3 of 92 points - Weak - 44 unanswered). The 'MENTORSHIP' section has 'Coaching and the group's rating'. The second screenshot at 9:40 shows the same sections but with a 'Finish visit' button at the bottom. The third screenshot at 9:54 shows the 'Group business' section with fields for 'Type of business', 'Money in each month (KES)', 'Costs each month (KES)', 'People it employs', and 'Biggest problem they face'. It also has a 'Save' button at the bottom.

Visit type, your location with its accuracy, and anything left open from last time.

The rest of the same screen: scorecard, coaching, the group's enterprise, your notes, and Finish.

The group's enterprise — what they run together, and how it is doing.

About the location

- It is read once, when you open the visit, and only then. The app does not follow you around.
- A visit can be recorded with no location at all. If the group met somewhere unusual, record it and say so in your notes.
- Your phone never decides whether you were in the right place. It reports coordinates; the office compares them with the group's registered point. There is no argument to have with the phone.
- Never falsify it. A visit recorded from somewhere you were not is the one thing here that cannot be quietly corrected later.

If the phone cannot find a fix

Move into the open and tap Update location. If it still fails, record the visit without one — that is a supported case, not a failure. Waiting on GPS while a group sits in front of you is the wrong trade.

PART 3

Scoring the group

The scorecard is 92 points across 7 sections. It is worked through with the officials, in front of them, one section at a time — not filled in afterwards from memory on the way home.

How the scorecard works

- One section per page. The running score and band sit at the top the whole way, so you always know where the group stands.
- Four answers: Yes, Partial, No, Not applicable. Not applicable is a real answer rather than a way of skipping — it takes the points out of the total instead of scoring zero.
- Unanswered is visible. The visit screen shows how many are still blank. A half-finished scorecard is a half-finished visit.
- It works offline once the form has been downloaded once.

The bands

Scored as a percentage of the points that apply, so a question marked Not applicable never drags a group down:

Weak Fair Good Excellent
0%	40%	60%
	80%	100%
Band	Score	What it means for your next visit
Weak	Below 40%	Needs close support. Agree a plan before you leave.
Fair	40% and above	Functioning, with gaps to close in specific areas.
Good	60% and above	Sound practice. Keep the weaker sections moving.
Excellent	80% and above	Strong across the board. A candidate to mentor other groups.

Tell the group their band before you leave

You will know it before you stand up — the running total is on screen the whole time. A group that hears its score from you, with the reasons, will work on it. A group that hears it three weeks later from the office will argue with it.

Photographs as evidence

- You can only take a photo from the question it answers. There is no general camera button anywhere in a visit, and that is on purpose: a picture with no claim attached to it is evidence of nothing.
- Each photo is bound to the group, the visit, the section, the question, you, and the time it was taken.
- Photos are shrunk on the phone before they queue, so a full visit does not need much data.

- There is a cap per visit. When you reach it the app says so rather than silently dropping one.
- A photo that fails to upload never fails the visit. The visit goes; the photo retries on its own.

Ask before you photograph anyone

A register, a certificate or a cash box needs no permission. A person does. Say what the photograph is for and who will see it, and do not take it if they would rather you did not — the scorecard has a place for what you observed either way.

The screenshot shows the 'Assessment' screen of the Intelli-Cash app. At the top, the status bar shows 9:39, signal strength, and battery level. The app header includes a back arrow and the title 'Assessment'. Below this, it indicates 'Section 1 of 7' and a running score of '3 / 92 · Weak'. A progress bar shows '44 still to answer'. The section title is 'Governance and leadership' with the question 'Is the group properly constituted, led and held to its own rules?' and '3 of 16 points in this section'. There are three questions, each with four radio button options: 'Yes', 'Partial', 'No', and 'Not applicable'. The first question 'Does the group have a written constitution?' has 'Yes' selected. The second question 'Can members explain the key rules in the constitution?' has 'Partial' selected. The third question 'Are all committee positions filled?' has no selection. Each question has an 'Add photo' button below the options. At the bottom are 'Back' and 'Next' buttons.

Section 1 of 7, with the running score and band above it. Yes, Partial, No, Not applicable — and Add photo on every question.

PART 4

Coaching, and being scored yourself

The mentorship step records what you taught. Then you hand the phone to an official and the group scores the session. That way round is deliberate.

Recording your coaching

- Tick the topics you actually covered, from the list the office maintains — so a quarter's coaching can be counted across every agent rather than only described.
- Write what you advised in your own words. This is the part a supervisor reads when a group asks for support later.
- Leave a topic unticked if you only mentioned it in passing. An inflated coaching record helps nobody and is easy to spot.

Then hand the phone over

The group rates the session out of five on four questions: was the advice clear, was it useful, were they treated with respect, and were you prepared.

The rating is theirs, not yours

An agent rating their own coaching would be uniformly four or five and worth nothing in aggregate. Hand the phone to an official and step back while they answer. A visit can be recorded without a rating, but the group's view is the only useful measure of whether the coaching landed.

The coaching topics, maintained by the office so the same words mean the same thing across every agent.

Then the phone goes to the group: four questions, one to five. Your score, in their hands.

Your caseload report — groups, how many rated, how many need support. Shareable from the phone.

PART 5

Looking after what you collect

You gather other people's personal data on somebody else's behalf. Under the Kenya Data Protection Act, 2019 that carries duties — and they fall on you in the field, not on the office afterwards.

What a visit collects about people

Your location	Coordinates and accuracy, at the moment you open the visit. Yours, not the members'.
Photographs	Of premises, records and — if you take them — people. Bound to a question, a visit and your name.
Assessment answers	Your judgement of how the group is run.
Coaching notes	Free text, which often names individuals.
The group's enterprise	Turnover, costs and employment for a business real people depend on.
Action items	Who agreed to do what, and by when.

What is expected of you

- Say why you are recording. A group is entitled to know what you are writing down and who will read it. Tell them at the start, not when they ask.
- Collect only what the visit needs. Free-text notes are the easiest place to over-collect. Write what bears on the group's governance and money, not what you heard about somebody's family.
- Photograph things, not people, unless you have asked.
- The phone is the record until it syncs. Lock it. Do not lend it. Sync as soon as you have signal — which is also what protects the visit from a lost handset.
- Never share one group's figures with another group, or with anyone outside the programme, however casually.
- Sign out on a shared phone. Your whole caseload is visible to whoever is signed in.

If a phone is lost or stolen

Tell the office the same day. Everything already synced is safe on the server. Anything recorded and not yet sent is the only thing at risk, which is the whole argument for syncing after every visit rather than at the end of the week.

A member may ask what is held about them, ask for it to be corrected, or complain to the Office of the Data Protection Commissioner. You do not have to answer that on the spot — pass it to the office. The full notice is at intellcash.co.ke/privacy.

PART 6

When things go wrong

The handful of situations that come up often enough to be worth carrying an answer to.

There is no network at the group	Carry on. The whole visit is recorded on the phone and sent later. Only the very first sign-in needs a connection.
The scorecard says the form is not available	The assessment form has never been downloaded on this phone. Connect once, open Score the group, and it works offline from then on.
A group is not in my caseload	You cannot see it and cannot record against it. The office assigns caseloads — ask them rather than looking for another route.
I chose the wrong visit type	Finish the visit and tell the office. A submitted visit is not edited on the phone; it is amended at the office, and the amendment is part of the record.
The group disputes its credit rating	Open the group and read the factors aloud. Every line says what it came from — meetings sealed, loans repaid — and the list at the bottom says exactly what would raise it.
The group disputes your assessment	That is a conversation, not a fault. Your score is recorded as your judgement. Note their objection in your visit notes.
Photos are not uploading	Leave them. They retry on their own and never block the visit. If they are still queued after a day of good signal, tell the office.
I was signed out unexpectedly	Sessions last 8 hours. Sign in again; anything already recorded on the phone is untouched.

A visit in one minute

Photograph this page, or tear it out.

When	What
Before you go	Open the group while on signal. Check the scorecard form downloads. Read last time's open actions. Charge the phone.
On arrival	Greet, explain what you will be recording and why. Open the visit. Let the location settle.
With the officials	Work the scorecard section by section, out loud. Photograph from the question, never from a gallery.
Coaching	Tick only what you covered. Write what you advised. Hand the phone over for the rating.
Before you leave	Tell them the band and the reasons. Agree the actions and who owns each one.
Back in signal	Open the app and let it sync. Check the visit has gone.
